Saturday, November 16

Boston, Mass., Nov. 9th, 1912.

Lamorey Clo. Co.,

Barre, Vermont.

Attention of Mr. J. E. Weaver.

Friend Joe: I am sending you by today's express 44 suits which were made up for the Priest Clo. Co. of Newmarket, N. H., by Jacob Cohen Co. of New York, the same house that makes our union made clothing. These suits also bear the union label.

These suits were waylaid and were refused by the Priest Clo. Co. on account of the fact that the season was so far advanced, and as they had been in transit for such a long time the makers refused to take them back, therefore they were left on the hands of the railroad company to be disposed of as best they could and today I bought them for just exactly half price. They were made to sell for $20, $22.50 and $25.

Now, what I want you to do is to sew our label on the pocket of each garment and advertise them for next Saturday all at one price, $12.98. They will be the greatest values that the public of Barre have ever seen in the clothing line. Do not sell them for anything but CASH and see if you cannot dispose of all of them in one day. I am sure if you show them up right and give them the proper advertising that the public will not overlook them. Yours very truly,

A. A. L.—M. W.

A. A. Lamorey.

G. S. Smith, officiating. The burial will take place in the village cemetery at Worcester.

Local hunters are culling their firearms in preparation for the annual deer killing, which opens Friday morning. Others who made little pretense at marksmanship and yet who yearly stalk the woods in a futile quest for venison are also making earnest plans for the open season. That the woods will be full of men and explosive hardware during the ten days beginning Friday is the prediction of farmers who know best whether or not the killing will be heavy this year. According to their reports, the four-footed ones abound in large numbers this year and their comment on the prospects is nothing if not tempting to the professional hunter, as well as the tireless business man who will decide around Thursday night that he needs a day or two in the woods. Late in the demand for hunters' licenses at the city clerk's office has justified the prophecy that the deer will be busier than ever this year doling lead.

A SUIT OR OVERCOAT

When a man prepares to make a purchase of a Winter Suit or Overcoat, his perception of quality may be dimmed by a price which looks attractive to him and a garment that has all the appearance of worth. Clothes quality must be on the inside as well as outside. It is as much the things that cannot be seen as those that can that count for quality. Avoid the unknown in favor of the known, and you are on the safe side. A dollar or two may be money saved if you get the right article. We can save you money by selling you a Suit or Overcoat, because the real value is there—perfect fit—dependable materials, and sincere workmanship. We submit these points for your consideration, and our wide assortment for your inspection.
